Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Monday 25 Jan 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Icy patches tonight, rain and hill snow spreading east tomorrow.

This Evening and Tonight:
Patchy rain and hill snow for parts of western and southern Scotland and the far north of England, whilst more persistent rain and hill snow spreads into Northern Ireland, Wales and southwest England later. Clear spells and icy patches elsewhere.

Tuesday:
Early cloud, rain and hill snow over Northern Ireland, Wales and southwest England spreads eastwards, higher ground in Scotland then seeing the most persistent hill snow. Feeling cold.

Outlook for Wednesday to Friday:
Cold and bright at first on Wednesday, but rain at times, heavy in the west, then spreading eastwards with some hill snow across Scotland. Becoming milder and windier.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.